

Itinerary:

The tour will begin with a drive through picturesque Kent countryside to Pett Bottom where James Bond was raised by his aunt. From the pub where Ian Fleming is believed to have written 'You Only Live Twice' we will continue our journey through quaint villages and beautiful countryside to Bokesbourne, where Ian Fleming used to own property, formerly an archbishop's palace.

From there, our journey will take us to Sandwich Royal St George's Golf Course where Auric Goldfinger played James Bond. After a brief stop to look at the course and the club house, we will continue our journey along the coast to Kingsdown, home of Hugo Drax.

The next stop will give us an opportunity to admire the famous White Cliffs and to see the fictional missile site from where the Moonraker was launched. The final stop will be in photogenic St Margaret's Bay, dramatically nestled underneath the White Cliffs. Here we will see the house which Ian Fleming used as a weekend residence between 1951 and 1956 and the beach which also features in Moonraker.
